AI, Big Data and Disruptions in the Deal-Making Environment

Tuesday, 15 January 2019, Asia Society Hong Kong Centre

AGENDA

1:30PM  REGISTRATION

2:00PM  KEYNOTE ADDRESS

US-China Economic Friction: Technology Not Trade

• Why the US-China dispute is more about technology than trade
• Why it’s not just the US and China—many other countries have stakes in this dispute
• What US-China friction could mean for global technology supply chains
• Why technology is so important for China’s rebalancing and deleveraging

Dr Shaun Roache, Chief Economist, Asia-Pacific, S&P Global Ratings

2:30PM  BIG DATA AND AI PANEL

Presentation: Challenges of building AI in financial context

Jason Tu, Co-Founder and CEO, MioTech

Panel Discussion:
Where are New Business Opportunities Emerging as AI Takes Off?

• Where are we in Gartner’s “Hype Cycle” of development that identifies emerging technologies that will blur the lines between humans and machines?
• Have we taken a reality check, or are expectations still exceeding what is possible?
• What areas are likely to be most affected and disrupted by AI as new start-ups continue to take hold?
• Are vast amounts of data the secret to success with AI? If so, can China's data advantage enable it to topple U.S. dominance in the tech sector?
• How are other regions/countries evolving in this race?

2nd Annual Financial Forum 2019

AI, Big Data and Disruptions in the Deal-Making Environment
Tuesday, 15 January 2019, Asia Society Hong Kong Centre

AGENDA

• What strategies should investors consider to capitalize on AI, in addition to investing in Start-ups?
  Seth Huang, Director, AI Applications Research Center, Huawei Technologies
  Jason Tu, Co-Founder and CEO, MioTech
  Peter Wittmann, Head of M&A, TUS International (Moderator)

3:25PM  M&A AND IPO PANEL

Presentation:
Clement Ma, Senior Director, S&P Global Market Intelligence

Panel Discussion:
What Will the Landscape Look Like Going Forward?
• To what degree is your organization embracing AI?
• What were the most surprising developments from your perspective as the U.S. targeted China for a trade war?
• Have companies adjusted to the new environment and will become more decisive on M&A and investments, or is there a general hesitation now?
• We saw a drop in M&A activity last year, but IPOs are happening. How will the M&A and IPO landscape shape up going forward?
• How has the recent drop in tech stocks affected the appetite for new IPOs in this area?
  Emily Kwong, Managing Director, CLSA Limited
  Eugene Tan, Co-Head of Investment Banking, Shanxi Securities International
  Elizabeth Wang, Head, Rothschild & Co
  Robert Woll, Partner, Mayer Brown LLP, Hong Kong (Moderator)

AGENDA

4:40PM INVESTMENT PANEL

Presentation:
Edwin Chan, Director, S&P Global Market Intelligence

Panel Discussion:
Digging Deep on AI to Inform Decision-Making
- Is your industry affected by AI or Big Data in any way?
- Do you see the AI market being overcrowded as new companies form and discuss machine learning, natural language processing, neural networks, and more?
- How do you judge the complexities of AI as you evaluate opportunities? What are the most important criteria you consider?
- Have recent political changes affected your investment thesis or strategies in any way, or caused you to adopt a more conservative approach?
- To what extent is Big Data and AI a theme in your deals? Do you look for AI companies and, if so, where and why?

Shiv Dalvie, Founder, Cotton Tree Management Limited (Moderator)
Jim Hildebrandt, Managing Director, Bain Capital, Hong Kong
Gabriel Li, Managing Partner & Investment Committee Member, Orchid Asia Group
